GREATER AID TO BRITAIN SEEN

Expansion of U. S. Steel Industry Urged

BETHLEHEM CO. REVEALS PLAN FOR 4 PLANTS

To Increase Production By 850,000 Tons Under New Program.

OTHERS TO FOLLOW

Defense Work Speeded Up By 20 Per Cent Increase In Ingot Output.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The national defense advisory commission waited today for other members of the steel industry to accept its invitation to expand production facilities for the defense program.

Bethlehem Steel company announced an $18,000,000 expansion program last night. It will increase its annual ingot capacity by 850,000 tons.

In making public Bethlehem's proposal, Edward R. Stettinius, head of the commission's raw materials division, revealed that a dispute within the commission over the desirability of expanding steel production had been settled. He said that in his opinion the members of the commission would "look with favor upon the installation of desirable emergency facilities in the steel industry."

Stettinius' announcement indicated that those advocating new plants had won the dispute. It was assumed that other steel companies engaged in defense work would announce expansion plans soon.

President Eugene G. Grace of the Bethlehem Steel company announced details of the new program in New York. The new facilities will produce not only more steel ingots, but an additional 800,000 tons of coke and 700,000 tons of pig iron annually. Construction will be done at the Bethlehem, Lackawanna, Maryland and Steelton plants Grace said.

The company has filed an application with the navy department for a "certificate of necessity" which would entitle it to a tax deduction for amortization of expansion costs over a five year period.

But the Bethlehem program is a long way from the 20 per cent expansion of the industry desired by government economists. Present steel capacity, according to Stettinius, is 83,000,000 tons per year. A 20 per cent increase would mean addition of facilities to produce 16,000,000 additional tons a year. The Bethlehem program will add only 850,000 tons.

At Premiere of 'Here Today, Gone Tomorrow'

It was a big night last night at John Simpson auditorium when the Mansfield Community Players presented "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow." No. 1.—Mrs. Jack Berno as Pearl, and Ruhland Isaly as the Bucyrus railroader, discussed the play between the second and third acts. 2—The two authors, Louis Bromfield (left) and George Hawkins, were so interested in the staging of their play that they did everything from help direct to carry props. 3—Helen Bacon, director of the Players, heaved a tired sigh of relief last night after the final curtain call, for it marked "finis" to six weeks of hard work. 4—Herb Slough, who was a hit as Sam Burton, gets his make-up from the capable hands of Mrs. Henry Huston. 5—Marjory, the plump vaudevillian, holds the center of the stage as she forces her new song on her old friends. At the extreme left is Dick Olin who did a swell "bit" as Solomon, with Corinne Schettler next him. At the table is Alice Partello as Sadie; the silent but effective Herman (Gerald Van Arnam) at the piano, and Mabel Ward as Marjory emoting all over the place. Mrs. Berno is seated at the right. 6—A hit of the show was Rhea Bauer, who made her first stage appearance as Aunt Min, showing Bromfield the corsage sent her by the American Legion auxiliary of which she is a member.

Problem Gets Special Study By Officials

Fourth Extraordinary Meeting Held By High Government Officers; Didn't Talk About 'Peanuts;' Eddles Proposes Big Loan.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones said today that the British government was "a good risk" and that ordinarily he favored loans to "good risks when they need it for a proper purpose."

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Imminence of an important new decision in the aid-for-Britain program—perhaps on a par with the dramatic destroyer trade or the release of giant bombers—was strongly indicated today.

Positive information was lacking as to the exact nature of the matter under consideration, but high significance was attached to the act that it brought nine of the most important officials in the government together yesterday for a special conference.

Thrice in recent months similar extraordinary meetings have been held and each time, it was pointed out, a major step in aid-to-Britain followed quickly.

"These people don't get together to talk about peanuts," one conferee commented.

First surmises were that the meeting was concerned with the question of supplying Britain with enough tonnage to replace some of her recent heavy shipping losses.

One informed official said however, that if merchant shipping was discussed, "it wasn't the big thing."

Tending to support this assertion was the maritime commission's action yesterday in approving the sale of 4 more cargo vessels to Britain. Since the war, 130 such American ships have been sold to Britain, and the commission announced that it still had 63 laid-up ships on which Britain could bid.

While not connecting the matter with yesterday's special meeting, the New York Herald Tribune reported today, however, that the subject of a British loan already had been advanced.

The newspaper said that Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the federal reserve system, had proposed at a private New York meeting last week that the United States make Britain a $2,500,000,000 loan, the security to be a lien on the British empire's gold production for the next five years.

One source of concern has been what would happen to American export trade if British resources should become exhausted. The empire now takes 60 per cent of all this country's exports, and a sudden, complete collapse of this big market would be a heavy blow to America's national economy.

Merchant Ships Offered Britain

First Nighters Get 'Kick' Out of Bromfield's Play

Agree Production Was Entertaining and That Players Did a Good Job; Second Performance on Tonight.

It was a foregone conclusion that a Mansfield audience would respond enthusiastically to the premiere of the Bromfield-Hawkins play which was held last night at John Simpson auditorium, first because Mansfield takes a personal pride in the works of its distinguished son, and second, because the city is proud of its Community Players.

But eliminating these two factors "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow" as given by the Players last night, was a success because it is an entertaining play and was very well done.

The audience of "first nighters" got a tremendous kick out of the event which was an unusual one in theatrical annals—the first presentation of a play by a famous author, done entirely by amateurs. The auditorium entrance was flood-lighted, camera flash bulbs were popping throughout the play from all parts of the theater and there was an air of excited expectancy over the place. Between acts, theater critics from more than a dozen newspapers and magazines gathered in the foyer to discuss the play.

The auditorium was packed last night, with a number of persons

Physicians were unable to immediately determine the cause of her death, whether it was due to injuries sustained in the fall or whether she had suffered a stroke.

Surviving Mrs. Starr are two daughters, Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. J. A. Wilson of Chicago; two sons, Patrick of Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Edward of Detroit; and five grandchildren, and a sister.

The body was removed to the Finefrock funeral home where it will remain until funeral arrangements are complete.

MERCURY DROPS TO TWO ABOVE

It'll Be Warmer Tonight But Colder Tomorrow, Forecast For State Says.

The mercury began to climb back to more normal temperatures today over Ohio as the first cold wave of the month, which sent Mansfield thermometers down to two degrees above zero early this morning, moved eastward.

But it took a last slap at this section of the state with a biting wind and snow flurries this morning. The weather bureau predicted warmer temperatures tonight but forecast snow and colder weather tomorrow.

The cold wave of the past two days brought new lows over the nation for this time of year, leaving death and snow-bound trains in its wake, and icy streets were responsible for a number of accidents.

At Cleveland the mercury slid down to 6 degrees, the coldest for a Dec. 4 since 1871. The

British Sea Position Called Not Desperate

Heavy Loss of Ships Attacked By Nazi Submarines and Bombers Considered Serious Matter, However.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The heavy sinkings of British and Allied shipping by Nazi U-boats and bombers is in all conscience a serious matter, but lest we be misled in our estimates it's wise to record that Britain's position on the sea is by no means desperate.

The torpedoing business, like most other enterprises, has its good days and its bad ones—as witness the claim of Berlin that on Monday U-boats sank 18 ships with a tonnage of 148,000, and probably got two more, making a total of over 160,000 tons. Such a sensational report of wholesale slaughter of good ships sounds like the end of all things.

However, no longer ago than Nov. 26 British Minister of Shipping Cross stated that the Germans were averaging 60,000 tons a week. Yesterday London announced that for the four weeks ending Nov. 24 the Axis had done away with 323,157 tons—a considerable increase over the average.

If we use this larger figure of 323,157 as a basis for calculation, it would take Herr Hitler some six years to put the present British and Allied merchant marine out of business.

Actually, of course, this has little value as a long-range calculation. I cite the estimate, not to detract from the gravity of the Nazi assault, but with the idea of helping us keep our perspective.

But while Britain can lose a lot more shipping and still keep herself afloat, the losses of the cargoes must be a matter of deep concern for the government. The British Isles are terribly vulnerable in that they are dependent on sea-borne imports for the bulk of their foodstuffs and raw materials.

These cargoes which are going to the bottom in such large numbers, represent not only food but the wherewithal for the manufacture of the all-important warplanes and other necessities.

Just to show the resources still left to Britain, it may be cited that London estimates she has on hand about 23,000,000 tons. She started the war with 19,284,000 tons in vessels of over 1000 tonnage. She at once some 9,000,000 tons from U. S. and 2,500,000 tons are said to have been sunk up to Nov. 10.

Thus it is apparent that Britain actually has more tonnage than when the war started.

ATTACKS: Birmingham and London Raided By Germans

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Birmingham, often-bombed heart of the industrial Midlands, shared with London the brunt of German air attacks last night, but adverse weather was credited today with blunting the striking power of the Luftwaffe and limiting damage and casualties to a minimum.

(Informed sources in Berlin said the attack on Birmingham was carried out "on a large scale," and that returning pilots reported 25 large fires blazing in the city.)

A communique issued by the ministries of air and home security minimized the effectiveness of the German night assaults, saying clouds prevented them from picking out their targets.

The British public, meanwhile, was encouraged by the disclosure that Royal Air Force fighter planes had been equipped secretly with cannon in an effort to meet the challenge of the German air force more adequately.

The cannon are designed to pierce the heavier armor with which the Germans have been equipping their craft.

So bad was the weather last night that the Germans headed for home shortly after 10 p. m.

Operations of the Royal Air Force likewise were curtailed, but authoritative sources said a small squadron of its night raiders bombed railway communications in the Rhineland, where Cologne has been a favorite objective.

The government said today the German attacks on Britain last night nowhere were on a large scale, and that first reports indicated the number of casualties would "not prove large."

Several persons were buried, however, when a bomb struck a

Parking Meter Collections $1,307 for First Eight Days

Mansfield's new parking meters paid off handsomely the first eight days they were in operation, with the pennies and nickels which purchased parking space for Mansfield shoppers, running into hundreds of dollars.

The third collection from the 112 meters was made Monday and when the coins had been counted and added to the first two collections, they made the impressive total of $1,307.01 for eight days.

Mayor W. J. Locke said that the total number of coins for the three collections was 59,226 pennies, 14,155 nickels and 70 dimes.

The average daily income from the meters over the eight-day period was $144.44, which means that individual meters averaged 35 cents a day.

Locke said that when councilmen and city officials were discussing plans for the meters, all computation on possible income were based on an estimated 25 cents a meter per day. So far the average is 10 cents higher. The higher figure, however, cannot be taken as an indication of what the meters will do throughout the year, for the shopping season is at its height just before Christmas and brings thousands of shoppers to the down town district.

Mayor Locke said today that he did not present the plan for the city to lease free parking lots to city council last night because the plans had not crystalized as yet.

RETREAT: Fascist Troops Reported Falling Back Fast

(By Associated Press)

ATHENS—Greek forces were reported today to be pressing hard against the Italian defenses of Porto Edda and Argirocastro, Albania, where resistance was said to be collapsing with capture of both cities expected at any moment.

Earlier a Greek spokesman declared that Fascist troops were falling back fast in the region of Porto Edda, the Italians' southernmost port of entry into Albania and that Greek advance units were within a mile and a quarter of the city.

(The Italian high command however declared today that its troops held their positions against heavy artillery-supported attacks and in some sectors had counter-attacked.)

Other Greek forces, at the opposite end of the Albanian battlefront, were said to be driving steadily through snow-blanketed mountains toward Elbasani and the Albanian capital, Tirana.

In the area of Argirocastro Greek artillery was said to have neutralized resistance by placing under fire the road running northeast from Porto Edda inland.

North of the Ostrovitza mountains in the central sector new positions were said to have been occupied by the Greeks in their counter-invasion of Albania. An Athens spokesman said they set up field pieces and shelled Italian emplacements.

Heavy and medium bombers of the Greeks were reported exceptionally active yesterday, facilitating ground operations.

Draftees to be Stationed at Atlantic Defense Bases

FIRST LINE OF LAND DEFENSES BEING STARTED

Thousands of Soldiers Needed To Protect Projects on British Soil.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Many thousand American soldiers, including a good sprinkling of draftees will be stationed on the Atlantic bases the United States has leased from Great Britain, informed army sources predicted today.

Stretching 2,500 miles from icy Newfoundland to British Guiana in South America, these eight bases will push this country's first line of land defenses far out in the Atlantic. That they are to be land defenses rather than simple naval bases, was confirmed by the war department's announcement that army garrisons will be stationed there.

Construction work by the army already has started on two bases—Newfoundland and Bermuda — and barracks, air fields, and anti-aircraft defense facilities will be erected soon on the others.

War department officials hope the first army units will be established on some of the bases by late spring.

The units in general will be made up of a nucleus of veterans, and a group of regular army enlisted men, and then filled to fighting strength by the addition of draftees.

To inaugurate its construction work, the army is using $25,000,000 allotted out of President Roosevelt's emergency fund. The navy has been given $50,000,000 from this fund with which it is starting construction of naval bases.

For the navy, however, these bases will be simply "filling stations" and points from which to operate ships and planes and will be manned by only a few hundred naval men, officials said.

On the army falls the entire task of defending these bases—which means planes, anti-aircraft units, infantry garrisons and perhaps large coast defense batteries. Army officers declined to speculate on the number of men needed for adequate defense of the bases, but pointed out that this country maintains a land force of 20,000 in Hawaii for the sole furpose of defending the naval base at Pearl Harbor.

Disclosure of details of the construction work now underway by the army at Newfouudland and Bermuda made it clear that the U. S. is planning to establish as formidable fighting bases as possible all along the Atlantic.

Ashland Youth, 17, One of Winners In Health Contest

Tom Wiley, 17-year-old Ashland youth, and Miss Beulah Stutsman, 17, of Bryan, O., were among the five healthiest 4-H club boys and girls chosen yesterday at the 19th annual national 4-H club congress held in Chicago in connection with the International livestock exposition.

Young Wiley was one of the health champions in Ohio and was eligible to enter the Chicago competition after taking honors last summer at the Ohio State fair.

The health champions were selected by a group of eight physicians.

In addition to a number of awards won two days ago by Shorthorn cattle entries from Maxwalton farms, Mansfield, two other prizes went to the Mansfield entries yesterday.

A group of Shorthorn junior heifer calves won a first prize ribbon, while a second prize went to a summer yearling heifer, and a third to a senior yearling heifer. The Maxwalton entries are in charge of P. G. Ross.

Other Ohio winners included a reserve champion senior Percheron stallion owned by the Fairfield Stock farm at Lancaster and a reserve grand champion Hampshire hog by Ohio State university.

Part of the business of playacting even among amateurs is to "cover up" when a player misses a line, or a bit of stage business fails to work out correctly. But seldom does an actor meet such situations with greater aplomb than Joy Berno showed at the Bromfield premiere last night when a cupboard door refused to open. She was trying to get a towel to dry the fuzzy coat of "Whiskers," wire-haired terrier used in the play. When all three cupboard doors jammed, Mrs. Berno turned away with the remark: "Well, I can't get a towel. You'll just have to let him drip." Author Bromfield liked the "recovery" so well he's making it a regular part of the play for future performances.

MONEY RUNNING LOW, COUNCIL JUGGLES FUNDS FOR OPERATION

Moving to keep the municipal purse in order as the end of the year approaches, city council went in for wholesale transfers and appropriations last night, thereby averting financial dilemmas in several departments.

There were several appropriations ranging in amounts up to $4,800 but it was left to a $35 amount to cause a great deal of discussion.

The controversial measure was a $35 appropriation from the parking meter revenues which was finally approved to be used for printing and incidental expense in operating the machines.

The measure apparently got to council without any of the legislators knowing about what the money was wanted for.

When the bill came up Councilman C. N. Schultz called for an explanation.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said the funds were sought for record sheets to be printed for use by the parking meter collector.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley entered the discussion, pointing out that the city was "obligated" to pay the renfal on the machines first. He said, however, that keeping records on the collections was in line with good administration.

Other appropriations included a $4,800 appropriation from the waterworks surplus to the relief fund to meet the city's share of relief costs for the balance of the year; a $350 appropriation from the general fund to pay sewer costs; $100 from the general fund to meet industrial insurance expense.

Transfers approved included a switch of funds in the health department, public recreation department, sewer department, waterworks, fire and police departments.

DISASTER IN OHIO AROUSES NEW INTEREST

Measure Would Provide For Federal Inspection and Publicity.

WASHINGTON — Aroused by the Cadiz, O., mine disaster, the United Mine Workers, led by John L. Lewis, today bent their efforts toward passage by the house of the Neely-Keller mine safety bill.

After a conference with John Owen, head of the UMW in Ohio, Lewis sent a letter to members of the house, pleading "in the name of humanity" for the congressmen to sign a petition to bring the bill to the floor for a vote.

The petition bears 202 names, only 16 short of the number necessary to discharge the house mines and mining committee from further consideration of the bill and to bring it up immediately for a vote in the house.

The bill, which passed the senate last Jan. 23, provides for a limited federal inspection of mines and publication of the findings. It is designed, Lewis wrote, to reduce the fatalities of the coal mining industry by publication of the facts affecting dangerous conditions in mines.

During the first eleven months of this year five major explosions have occurred in mines, with a fatality list of 267 men, latest of which was the Cadiz disaster which took 31 lives, Lewis pointed out.

The bill has been held in the house committee by tie votes. Twice efforts were made to report it to the house, once with a recommendation for passage and once without, but both roll calls were deadlocked. Under the rules, a tie vote defeats a motion.

Despite the past results, Rep. Joe Smith (D.-W. Va.), chairman of the committee, was seeking to round up sufficient members to constitute a quorum. If a quorum can be mustered, he intends to call a meeting on short notice to try again to have the bill voted out.

Ohio has three members on the committee, Reps. Robert Secrest, D., from Caldwell, Harold Claypool, D., from Chillicothe; and Earl R. Lewis, R., from St. Clairsville. All favor the bill.

RECEIVE FUNDS

Richland Subdivisions Given $12,132 In Car Tag Money.

Richland county and its cities and villages today received $12,132 as the final allocation of auto license money this year for road and street construction and repairs.

A similar amount will be sent to the county soon after Jan. 1 as the hold-over balance of 1940 license collections, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said.

In today's distribution the county road department received $9,044; Mansfield, $2,500, and Shelby, $250. The new village of South Boulevards got $125. Allocations to other villages ranged from $12.50 to $75.

The state auditor said the auto license money may be used for poor relief bills if authority is granted by county commissioners and city village councils.

Ginger Rogers' best beau, Howard Hughes, is flying high with Renee Hall, a Fox beauty. . . . Barbara Hutton is being guarded by two detectives after threats on her life. She is the wealthiest of a group of "victims" being terrorized by a new Hollywood blackmail ring—Clark Gable, Don Ameche and Paulette Goddard are among the celebrities who have asked protection or hired private guards.

Arlene Judge and Jack Dempsey are the chit-chat of the coast tea parties. Very yummy.

Grapevine reports have it that Jimmy Petrillo has secretly sided with ASCAP in the BMI-ASCAP fight, and will pull a strike of all musicians in every broadcasting station before Christmas.

Arthur Hornblow's next will be Veronica Lake (formerly Constance Keene). . . . Billy Conn, the handsome prizefighter, flies to Pittsburgh after every bout to hold hands with the beautiful blond daughter of "Greenfield Jimmy" Smith, proprietor of the Bachelor's club there. Billy and the belle are aiming for orange blossoms, but pappy opposes the match.

You can bet Public Enemy Lepke will never be tried for murder, no matter what the prosecutors say—because if Lepke is tried he has threatened to "take with him" several citizens in high places, one of whom is now serving in an important position on a government committee.

At the preview of "Second Chorus," the audience snickered during her innocent scene with Charlie Butterworth — in which several of the lines had two meaning for the locals. Army officials here learned this guarded German secret two days ago: German pilots are able to withstand the terrific pressure of a dive bombing because of a specially constructed sliding seat which goes flat when the plane goes into a dive.

The pilot is then lying on his back, which lowers the centrifugal force and keeps him from fainting. The instrument panel shifts to a point over the pilot's head as the seat slides. This feature will be incorporated immediately into U. S. dive bombers.

Phyllis Brooks and Victor Mature are taking it seriously. He cancelled a coast trip because he couldn't leave her for three whole days.

Survey Shows Grid Teams Depend More on Aerial Attacks In 1940.

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK — (AP) — A marked increase in forward passing and the development of more intricate offenses with an attendant outbreak of fumbles were the two principal trends in 1940 football reported by the country's coaches today in the annual Associated Press survey.

* * *

In the South, the East, the Midwest and on the Pacific Coast, coaches saw the forward pass becoming an increasingly important part of offenses. Harry Stuhldreher at Wisconsin noted not only more passing, but a better brand.

* * *

Nebraska stressed passes to win the Big Six title and the "eastern" Rose Bowl bid. Cornell, partly through lack of a real power runner, was one of the country's passingest teams.

After a season which Fritz Crisler at Michigan called the greatest from an offensive standpoint he ever had seen (a view which might have been prejudiced somewhat by having Tommy Harmon on his team), Babe Hollingsberry of Washington State and Doc Newton of North Caroline State were among those who emphasized the increase in deception.

Hollingsberry, in a league where hocus-pocus helped Stanford lead the parade, pointed to the number of teams using plays that featured men in motion, spreads and flankers. Newton singled out the use of the lateral pass, principally on buck-laterals developing into end, tackle, guard and even center-arounds (he used a center-around against Duke) as well as into forward passes.

Newton also complained many of the laterals were illegal.

The quick kick as an offensive weapon was more prominent than ever in the Big Six, the Southeast, the border conference, the Pacific northwest, the Big Seven, at Ohio State and at Yale.

* * *

Pennsylvania, to win the Ivy league championship, used the quick-kick to work its way upfield, generally refraining from running with the ball until it got possession near midfield.

* * *

SPORTS NEWS-JOURNAL

Midwest Dominates U-P All-America Club

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — The midwest, with four men, dominates the 1940 United Press All-America football team.

* *

The team announced today was chosen after a national poll of sports editors and sports writers on United Press newspapers from coast to coast. In addition, United Press football writers cast their votes.

* * *

Geographically, the first team is distributed as follows: Midwest, four; east, two; south, one, far west, two, southwest, two.

Under the method of selecting the team the perfect football player—the man who would have placed on everybody's All-America—would have received 512 votes. No player attained that many votes, but there was remarkable agreement on three backfield men, Tom Harmon of Michigan, George Franck of Minnesota and John Kimbrough of Texas A. & M.

Harmon led the voting with 478, Kimbrough received 471 and Franck 436.

The outstanding line player, in the opinion of the nation's sports writers, was Nick Drahos, Cornell's great tackle, who received 382 votes.

Drake Selected on Second INS All-Star Professional Squad

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK —(INS)— International News Service today not only offers its all-star professional team of the National Football league but also selects Ace Parker of the Brooklyn Dodgers as the outstanding football player of the United States, amateur or professional.

Parker was the overwhelming favorite with the selectors and, judging by their appended comments, "there was no second." The experts agreed he was in a class by himself.

The voting for the first and second teams was extremely close in almost all positions except for quarterback where Parker outdistanced his rivals.

It will be noted that no attempt has been made to "salve" anybody by placing a player from each team in the league. The Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh failed to place, a man although little Davey O'Brien received many votes.

Other Bowl Games Complete For New Year Day.

(By United Press)

Only one berth remained to be filled in New Year's day football games today following Georgetown's acceptance of an invitation to meet Mississippi state in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

* * *

This left only the opponent of Fordham in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas to be decided. The Texas Aggies are expected to get the call but southwestern conference officials have decided to await the outcome of the Southern Methodist-Rice game Saturday before making a choice.

* * *

The SMU-Rice winner will tie the Aggies for the conference title, but the Aggies are favored to get the bowl nomination because of victories over both during the season.

Georgetown beaten only by Boston college, accepted the Orange Bowl invitation by telegraph last night and C. F. Baldwin, president of the Orange Bowl committee, predicted a sellout crowd of 34,000 to see two such "excellently coached teams."

Here is the virtually completed bowl program.

Rose Bowl (Pasadena)—Stanford vs. Nebraska.

Orange Bowl (Miami)—Mississippi state vs. Georgetown.

Sun Bowl(El Paso) — Arizona state vs. Western Reserve.

Cotton Bowl (Dallas) — Fordham vs. ——.

The university athletic committee notified Harold Wickersham, backfield coach, that his contract would not be renewed.

Bearcats Beat Kentucky Club

Cincinnati Registers 34-29 Cage Victory.

(By Associated Press)

Ohio colleges remained undefeated against out-of-state foes on the basketball court today as they warmed up for a busy season.

* * *

Cincinnati University's Bearcats upheld Buckeye prestige last night, coming from behind to defeat Kentucky Wesleyan, 34-29, in a game in the Queen city.

* * *

At the start of the second period Cincinnati was leading, 14-9, but the Kentucky lads took the lead and held it until the last few minutes.

Callahan, Kentucky forward, rang up six field goals and six free throws for 18 points to pace the scoring.

Findlay college had things more its own way in beating Adrian college in Adrian, Mich., 36 to 17.

* * *

Otterbein college opened its season by whipping Cedarville, 59 to 27, thereby erasing the stigma of a 42-0 defeat last year at the hands of the same foe. The game, played in Westerville, also was Cedarville's opening contest.

* * *

ALL-OHIO KOSTOYO GIVEN VALUABLE PLAYER AWARD

SPRINGFIELD —(INS)— John Kostoyo, of Elyria, All-Ohio halfback and state collegiate high-scorer during the past football season, today had been honored by his teammates at Wittenberg college as the most valuable player on the undefeated Lutheran eleven. Seventeen members of the team were awarded letters last night by Coach William T. Stobbs at the annual grid banquet.

PLAYED IN 41 GAMES

Willie Heston, the famous Michigan halfback in 1901-'04, played in 44 college games, scored over 100 touchdowns, and never tasted defeat.

Urbana Driver Compiles 952 Points In Season.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—It's happened so often it scarcely makes news anymore but to keep the record straight Dr. H. M. (Doc) Parshall of Urbana, O., again is the U.S. king of harness race drivers.

The U. S. trotting association announced that the leather-faced veterinarian compiled 952 points during the past harness season to hold a wide margin over his nearest rival for the top drive honor. Sep Palin, Indianapolis, had 607 points for second place. Parshall won the honor last year with 1125 points.

Parshall drove 16 winning heats by Fearless Peter, three-year-old pacer owned by Dr. L. M. Guilinger, the country physician of Andover, O. Fearless Peter lost only one start and seven of his victories came on the blue-ribbon grand circuit.

It was the 15th time in 16 seasons that Parshall has finished on top as a winning pilot. He was forced to yield money-winning laurels, however, to Fred Egan, Lexington, Ky., who rolled up $43,000 to Parshall's $40,750 during the past campaign.

Fifth in the list of the nation's victorious drivers was Harry Short, Columbus, O., who piled up 440 points and won 23 heats. Wayne Smart, Delaware, O., was in 12th place with 276 points and 13 winning heats.

I—I HAVE ACCIDENTALLY UNLEASHED A DREADFUL POWER, THAT MAY GO ON AND ON—CAUSING MISERY AND DEATH, UNTIL THE WORLD ENDS!
OH, DEAR!
AND I THINK—YOU MIGHT BE ABLE TO HELP ME—STOP THIS!
THE YOUNG MAN'S FACE INSPIRED CONFIDENCE—THERE WAS A LOOK OF HONESTY, OF SINCERITY IN HIS EYES THAT APPEALED TO PAM, AND HIS GREATLY TROUBLED EXPRESSION TOUCHED HER DEEPLY!

—IT'S NUMBER TWELVE—I WILL BE GLAD TO TALK WITH YOU AGAIN!

JUDGE PUFFLE By Gene Ahern

YES, MISTER—YOU'D BETTER LET ME HANDLE THAT RIVAL OF YOURS! FROM YOUR DESCRIPTION OF HIM, HE'S ONE OF THE 'BEELER BOYS'!—I'VE BEEN GUN-FIGHTING THAT BANDIT GANG FOR THIRTY YEARS, AND YOU'RE TOO SOFT FOR THEIR BULLETS!
BUT I NEVER DESCRIBED MY RIVAL TO YOU, BECAUSE I NEVER SAW HIM!— I ONLY KNOW HIS NAME AIN'T 'BEELER'!
YOU WRONG! IF TWO-GUN TERRY SAY HIM 'BEELER BOY,' HIM BE!— UG-ME HEAP HUNGRY! YOU GO BUY NINE MINCE PIE!
DON'T ARGUE, ROBIN, YOUR RIVAL IS A 'BEELER'!

More sailors were killed in the United States by auto accidents than by drowning. Run over, no doubt, by sea-going hacks.

A Massachusetts citizen is accused of stealing a 50-ton bridge. He may be angry at the charge but he can't overlook the compliment of his physique.

Mussolini's remark that he finishes what he starts sounds too much like a prize fight manager's "He can't lick US!"

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE— The Distortionist. By Harold Gray

YES- MAYBE YOU'VE GOT SOMETHING THERE, PETE- YOUR BOY IS THE TYPE AND THE PART IS A NATURAL- BUT CAN HE ACT? WILL HE TAKE DIRECTION?

WHAT CAN SHE DO ABOUT IT? HA! SHE NEVER EVEN LOOKED HIM UP TILL THIS CHANCE FOR HIM TO MAKE MILLIONS CAME ALONG, DID SHE?
ME, I WOULDN'T KNOW ABOUT THAT, EXCEPT WHAT YOU TELL ME-

I'M THROWING A PARTY OVER TO MAX'S RESTAURANT- ABOUT 100 PEOPLE- PAYING 75 CENTS A HEAD- GETTING SOME OF THE PUBLIC-SPIRITED FOLKS TOGETHER TO GIVE THEM A TALK

YOU'RE NOT GOING TO BRING HIM UP HERE! I'M THE BOSS HERE!
YOUR WIFE TOLD MY WIFE YOU HAD TO SEND HIM MONEY EVERY WEEK- SO I THOUGHT WE'D STICK HIM IN THE FACTORY AND RELIEVE YOU OF THAT OBLIGATION- AND WHEN HE WASN'T BUSY YOU COULD USE HIM TO PICK UP STRAY DOGS TO SEND TO THE MAYOR'S OFFICE!

NEW YORK—(AP)—Shipbuilding and steel shares swung higher today in an otherwise irregular market.

Leaders on the upside include N. Y. Shipbuilding Electric Boat, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, United Aircraft, Boeing, Du-Pont U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck and Standard Oil of N. J.

Bonds were mixed. Commodities generally showed gains. The London market was steady with government bonds well supported.

Indications of further expansion of industrial production were of interest to boardrooms. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of electric power production set another new high at 135.9 compared with 134.7 a week ago and 128.8 a year ago.

Freight carloadings were estimated to have increased in the last week to around 734 000 from 733,488 in the preceding week.

FIRST NIGHTERS GET 'KICK' OUT OF 'HERE TODAY'

Agree Bromfield Play Was Entertaining, That Cast Did a Good Job.

standing. The play will be repeated tonight to an audience larger than the usual Community Players attendance, for about 800 tickets have been sold.

The entire show with the same cast will be presented in Lucas Thursday night in the Lucas high school auditorium with proceeds to be given the Farmers Institute.

"Here Today, Gone Tomorrow" is distinctly Bromfieldian in treatment and one guesses that both Bromfield and George Hawkins, his secretary-manager who collaborated with him, had a lot of fun writing it and at the same time taking a none too subtle crack at Hollywood and the unbelievable people who make up the picture industry. It was written about eight years ago in the film capital, obviously at a time when both men must have been looking with cynical eyes at the fabulous and sometimes fantastic inhabitants

The play itself is a succession of colorful characters strung together on a chain of episodes that stretches from the Busy Bee restaurant in Bucyrus to Hollywood. After the play is finished you realize that you've seen a parade of interesting characters rather than a lot of action.

There was Pearl, a pretty girl who "slung hash" in a Bucyrus railroad restaurant; and Beulah who drank enough to have perpetual delirium tremens, Homer, the brakeman who could recite—with gestures—MacBeth and Hamlet, but who was something of a pompous fool throughout his life, Aunt Min hard boiled, hard drinking, mercenary and with little principle, Sadie and Marjory, a couple of vaudeville has-beens, meek little Herman, Gilsworthy, the shoddy seal trainer who became a "great lover" in Hollywood and Sam Burton, canny and unscrupulous theater manager. They were a shoddy lot and they never changed fundamentally The changes were merely in environment and clothing

It is doubtful if Bucyrus ever had a waitress as pretty and charming as Mrs. Jack Berno in the role of Pearl; certainly there never was one with so much poise, talent and good diction as displayed by Mrs. Berno. And if there ever was a gal who drank as much "hard licker" as Beulah, she would be well preserved by this time. Mrs. Herbert Schettler, who is a favorite with Community Players audiences, gave the role a sincerity and restraint that made it one of the hits of the play.

No player in the cast was so definitely "on the spot" as Mrs. Lester Bauer, Washington township farm woman who had never been on a stage in her life. But she displayed a stage presence that was amazing for a complete novice, read her lines in a convincing manner and had her audience with her from beginning to end. Mrs. Bauer was chosen for the role of Aunt Min by the authors themselves She lives not far from the Bromfield farm and frequently visits there

It was a foregone conclusion that Alice Partello would make the role of Sadie an outstanding one, for she is, as all Mansfield knows, a former star of dramatic stock companies Mabel Ward too, is a trouper with a theatrical background, and played Marjory like a veteran Both women were accountable for many laughs in the play.

It was the general opinion of the audience that Herbert Slough never did any role better than his Sam Burton the theatrical manager. It was one of the longest parts in the play, with Burton on the stage most of the time but Slough never let it drag Ferd Loykovich another member of the Players stock company made a handsome seal trainer and made hero.

One of the most difficult masculine roles was done by Ruhland Isaly, whose Homer was a delightful "ham" of the first water, saving his lines in the best Delsartian manner Gerald Van Arnum as Herman had very few lines, but made the silent, meek husband with the bad liver an outstanding role.

The [illegible] action last night. Laurence [illegible] and by her so-called 'aid short of war' has begun to throw the tremendous weight of her resources into the war on Britain's side," Lewis declared in a radio broadcast.

"Britain can not survive in this conflict," Lewis said, "without this American aid. Having picked our side, having chosen our course, there is no turning back.

"Our industries must be geared to war time pitch without delay. Labor and management must understand that their own safety and the safety of the nation depends upon their uninterrupted operation."

Britain Faces Rebuilding Task

LONDON —(AP)— The government may have to apply its powers of labor compulsion "in tackling the most vitally important and urgent task of the reconstruction of our industrial centers," Sir John Anderson, home secretary told the house of commons today.

These powers Sir John said, "should be applied after consideration of all the facts," the real test being "whether it would give results"

(Britain's industrial areas, especially in the Midlands and around the great ports of Southampton and Bristol, have been the special targets of the German Luftwaffe in the last three weeks, beginning with the blasting of Coventry.)

Sir John said that Britain's shipping losses in recent months in the western approaches to Britain had "not been underestimated" by the government. He added that "these and connected problems are among the main preoccupations of the defense committee over which the prime minister presides"

He assured the house that Churchill is "giving constant attention to the question of enemy attack from undersea and from the air upon our ships and convoys

By a unanimous vote, the legislators placed a two and a half hour parking limit on West Third street and West Fourth street between North Mulberry and Bowman streets

The ban was approved to relieve congestion on the streets caused by persons working in the downtown district and leaving their cars parked on the street all day, councilmen said.

The ban was recommended by council's traffic committee.

Council also received several petitions A request came from property owners on Bartley avenue between Parkview avenue and Cline avenue asking paving of the roadway. The request was turned over to the street committee

The street committee was also handed petitions from property owners on Williams avenue asking for a parking ban on the street and a request from property owners on Greenlawn avenue asking that the street be cindered munications with the North American continent.

Morgenthau and his aides worked out the final details of a program after his conference with other cabinet members, ranking defense officials and Herbert Feis, state department economic adviser.

Yesterday afternoon's meeting was similar to the one which preceded the deal whereby President Roosevelt traded 50 over-age destroyers for air and naval base sites in British western hemisphere possessions.

Feis' presence indicated that economic aid to Britain also was discussed.

"You can say," a high administration official told the United Press, "that we are bending every effort to see that the British get more tonnage"

Morgenthau was understood to have discussed further aid to Britain with the president before Mr. Roosevelt left for the Caribbean inspection trip

Shortly after the conference, the maritime commission approved the sale of four American - owned freighters of about 5,000 tons each to British shipping concerns In all 130 ships have now been sold to Britain, of which 86 were of more than 1 000 gross tons.

The commission within the next few days will offer for sale 15 of the government's laid-up fleet of 63 ships, and every consideration will be given to British bids

The British contracted for the construction of 60 new vessels, of 9 000 and 10 000 tons, in American shipyards.

In one of them three persons suffered minor injuries Carl Korokney, 339 State street, was given treatment by a physician and later taken to General hospital for a gash on his knee and bruises about the head, while Tracy M Hathaway, R D. 2 Bellville, and T C Appleman 345 Albert street, sustained minor bruises when the Korokney and Hathaway cars came together at Second and Mulberry. Police said the Hathaway car crashed a red traffic light on the icy streets.

Daniel Blankenship, R D 1, East Straightsville, was revived by first aid methods applied by police yesterday when he was overcome with monoxide gas while working in the Ace Welding shop, with the door partially closed to keep out the cold.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 22 and while it fell to two degrees shortly after midnight there was a gradual climb upward toward morning and thermometers stood at 23 at noon.

Germans Planning 'Wolf-Pack Patrol' of Shipping Channels

LARGE U-BOAT FLEETS SENT AGAINST FOE

Scouting Seaplanes To Work With Subs, Guiding Them To British Convoys.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Germany is starting a new form of sea warfare, in which 100 U-boats will "run in packs, like wolves" with long range scouting seaplanes to guide them to distant British convoys, and dive bombers to aid them near the European coast, informants said today

It will be a closely coordinated over-and-under-the water "blitzkrieg," atoning for Germany's weakness in surface ships, Nazis said, and it will be the backbone of the campaign against Great Britain all winter.

The campaign was designed to offset the use in convoying merchant ships Britain is making of the 50 destroyers obtained from the United States It will fit closely into the scheme of knocking out British industrial towns in concentrated air raids according to the Nazis, who explained that one destroyed convoy meant the loss of both cargo and cargo-carrying capacity, and was as important as the bombing of a factory in crippling British economy

No more, the Nazis said will U-boats go out on long "chance hunts." They will, instead be sent out in squadrons, to patrol strategic areas Flying boats will reconnoiter far out in the Atlantic ahead of them The planes will be able to rest on the ocean and remain away from their bases two or three days They will supply weather reports to submarines and watch for convoys.

Operations will be centered at such places as the area southwest of England, where the shipping lanes of the world converge to form an "arterial sea highway" leading to British ports, it was said.

The attack on a convoy 400 miles off Ireland Monday, in which Nazis claim 14 merchant ships and an auxiliary cruiser were sunk, is attributed to airplane-U-boat cooperation. It is said that this coordinated effort will be extended to all fields, such as the mining of coastal waters by airplanes when submarines cannot do the work.

November Transactions Total $8,387,379: Exceed Previous Peak By $88,300.

Reflecting a spurt in business at the beginning of the holiday shopping season, Mansfield bank clearings for November climbed to the highest mark in more than three years and topped the previous monthly peak for 1940 by $88 300.

Clearings last month amounted to $8,387,379, a gain of $878,494 over November last year and $88,300 over October, 1940, which was the year's previous high.

November figures boosted the total for the year to $85,425 931, or $6,983 203 ahead of the first 11 months of 1939, the Clearing House association reported.

Clearings in November were above the $8,000,000 mark for the second time this year. Every month so far in 1940 has shown an increase over the corresponding month of last year.

HEAR SECRETARY

Phalanx Members Told of Conditions In Europe.

Harry Herman of Chicago, secretary of the international staff of the Y. M. C. A., spoke to members of the Phalanx fraternity on "Conditions of the Y. M. C. A.'s in Warring and the Invaded Nations" at a meeting of the fraternity last night at the Y. M. C. A.

Pointing out that although the movement was hindered and its activities were somewhat restricted, the work of the Y. M. C. A. was still going on in every country, with the exception of those falling under the domination of Soviet Russia.

Herman also revealed that most of the work by the "Y" was being done by workers in the prison camps of belligerent nations. Educational and physical programs are being carried on in the camps, he said.

Six new members were initiated into the fraternity. They were Robert Fink, Carl Laubscher, Andrew Zoll, Henry Bookwalter, William Maul and Robert Fry. Robert Sione, president, presided.

FOUR MORE IN COURT, PLEAD TO INDICTMENTS

All Cases Continued While Further Study's Made of Circumstances.

Four more persons indicted last Friday by the Richland county grand jury were brought before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court this morning, but all of the cases were continued to permit further investigation. Approximately a dozen cases were disposed of Monday.

Lewis Hatton, 47, Loudonville, pleaded guilty to an indictment for issuing checks without funds, but Judge Huston asked Prosecutor G. W. Marriott to contact a Loudonville bank in connection with the checks when Hatton contended his arrest was due to a "mix-up in my checking account."

Mrs. Mary Courtright, 33, Cleveland, who pleaded guilty to a bad check charge Monday, was brought back into court today for further questioning. Her case was continued for one week. It was learned that Cleveland probation authorities want Mrs. Courtright turned over to them if she is not sentenced here.

She admitted cashing a $50 check at the Mansfield-Leland hotel several weeks ago without funds in the bank.

Arraigned on indictments involving an alleged attack on Richard Shupp, jr., of Vernon Junction, Mike Takos and Arnold Reath pleaded innocent. Reath was indicted on a charge of stabbing with intent to wound and Takos for breaking into a home to commit personal violence.

Judge Huston termed the case a "family mix-up and misunderstanding" and ordered the defendants and members of their families back into court at 1:15 p. m. Friday

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1940.

Students at Ohio State can now settle down to the dull routine of becoming educated.

As Robert Quillen explains it: "For awhile you have a run of bad luck and then you seem to get over being dumb."

People who still place a 3-cent stamp on a letter addressed for local delivery will probably have some difficulty in learning how the parking meters operate.

New High In Red Cross Roll Call

RICHLAND county's steady climb in Red Cross membership, to this year's total of 12,500, is a fine accomplishment, and one of which every resident of Mansfield, Shelby and all of the county's villages and rural communities may well feel proud.

For even this record-breaking membership total does not represent all of the men and women in this county who are appreciative of the great work which is being done, year after year, by the American Red Cross. This list of 12,500 persons includes only those who are able, as well as willing, to contribute a dollar or more to help carry on this work. There are others, possibly many thousands, whose scant income is required to the last cent for family needs and who cannot spare even the single dollar required for Red Cross membership.

Instances have been known of persons who had at some time been beneficiaries of Red Cross aid, who saved in pennies throughout a year in order to pay for a membership at roll call time, but this should not be required as there are thousands of fortunate people in this city and county who are well able to contribute a dollar or more to the Red Cross—and who gladly do so, as evidenced by this year's roll call total.

Not to be forgotten, as another membership campaign ends, is the unselfish service performed by workers in Mansfield and all parts of the county, without whom success would have been impossible.

Changed World If Axis Wins

AMERICANS should recognize that it's a world war, and they're in it, says Dr. Henry M. Busch of Western Reserve university, a close student of international affairs. He insists that the war is "indivisible" and the battles between Greeks and Italians, British and Germans, Chinese and Japanese, are all parts of the same cataclysm.

The war not only spreads over this present world but it reaches out through time. The outcome will affect our children's children for a thousand years, declares Dr. Busch. "If the Fascists won, eventually Francisco Franco, as a stooge for Hitler, would control the Americas; Italy, the Mediterranean; Germany, Europe; and the Japanese, Asia. People who hope the dictators will fall out among themselves are deluded."

If this is the truth, and perhaps it is, some happy-go-lucky Americans had better take the situation more seriously than is now being done.

Co-operation In Coffee Control

THE coffee agreement, signed by the United States and 14 coffee-producing countries, is the result of the Havana conference and represents an effort to safeguard the countries concerned against totalitarian trade penetration. The pact must be ratified by all the signatory nations, according to their various constitutional processes, before it will become effective. After that, its success or failure may determine the course of future economic co-operation in the Americas.

The pact is intended to stabilize the coffee industry and bolster the economic defenses of the New World. It limits the amount of coffee which each of the 14 nations may send to the United States and world coffee markets in any one year. It aims to assure "equitable terms of trade for both producers and consumers by adjusting the supply to the demand."

The coffee-growing countries have had many troubles in recent years and have tried many methods of adjusting them, all within their own respective borders. The present experiment finds them working together for mutual benefit.

Considering Work Motives

PRESIDENT WILLIAM MATHER LEWIS of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., expressed a sound idea at a gathering of midwestern descendants of New England the other day. Among the traditions that ought to be revived, he said, was that of "the dignity of labor." In the last 25 years, workingmen had forgotten old standards. They now seem content to do the least for the most money. He urged them to return to the ideals of "the man who did his job for love and joy of the work."

Blessed, indeed, is the man or woman whose job evokes those emotions. It is one of the attributes of democracy, Americans believe, that it provides greater opportunity for such satisfactions than can be found under any other system. Even in these trying times, not many workers have exchanged satisfaction in excellent achievement for shirking and greed.

President Lewis might have gone farther. He might have urged the [illegible] to subordinate the profit motive to "[illegible] and export production." He might also [illegible] both groups the motive of service to the country.

There remains [illegible] motive realistic and also worthy of respect [illegible] living.

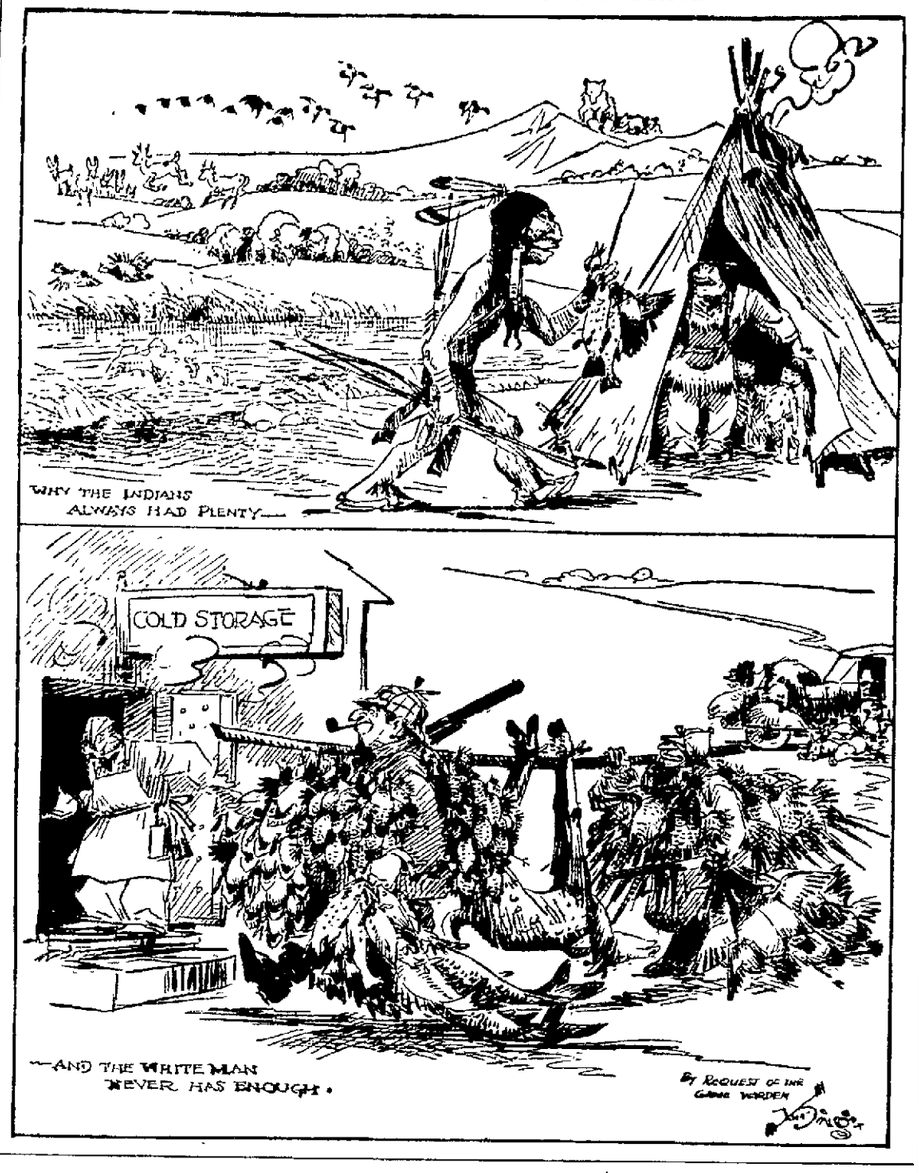
WHY GAME WARDENS GO CRAZY



Listen World!

What's Biting 'Em?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SEVEN of us Grownsters, parents all, sitting around the hearth, cracking nuts, slicking citron, tying wreaths—getting ready for Christmas. Talking about our youngsters, comparing our young holidays with theirs. Wondering why the modern High School kid was so restless, so discontented. What, said old man Hallet, was biting 'em, anyway?

Couldn't be our homes. None of us are rich but we have comfortable homes and the youngsters have the range of them. Plenty of simple fun—home parties once a week, hot dogs and doughnuts, dancing to battered radios and records. But nothing doing on school days—9:30 bed, then. Plenty of nice clothes, far better than we had at their age. No chores to speak of—there aren't in city homes. And certainly nothing tough about their training. Just a friendly talk now and then. Or a smiling but firm "No!" when they want to do something plain silly. And yet—

Almost overnight they've changed from a bunch of happy little tads to a gang of sulky, rebellious little grouches. Not that they've done anything serious, yet. But they're chock full of self-pity, ready to blow up over any trifle. Seems to date from the time they entered Hi and began to get grown-up ideas. Nothing unusual about that—we did, too, at their age. But it's the kind of idea they get. F'instance:

Suss 15-year-old Esther: "But wh-hy-uy, Mom, can't I have a black velvet formal like Lilwan's? I'm so sick of that old blue thing you made. Why have I gotta have home-made clothes, anyway? You make such baby stuff. I'm old enough to know what I want. Why can't you let me have the money to do my own shopping!"

At which point 15-year-old Ted chimes in: "Gosh, do I hafta go on wearing that ole blue suit? All the other fellas are getting tuxes this year. I feel like a fool goin' around in that goofy kid stuff. Why have I gotta wait until college? Just because kids didn't know how to dress when you were young. Dad, is no reason I shouldn't!"

Whereupon Marilyn, aged 14, elaborates on social life in the Younger Set: "Gee, Mom, I wish we could cut out these silly home parties and go out Saturday nights the way other kids do. Y'know—up to the Gables or down to Tony's. Nobody stays home 'n' plays games any more. You oughtta hear the Gang at Hi razz us!"

Says 16-year-old Allen: "Looka here, Dad, why can't I get a job? You're always griping about the way I spend my allowance. Why can't I leave school and earn some money for myself? Then I could be my own boss. I hate that old school anyway; 'tisn't doing me any good. And I hate worse bein' treated like a kid. Now, if I had a job—" etc., etc., etc.

After which comes a general lamentation over bed hours. Why-y-y do they gotta go to bed early like a lotta babies. And then the usual indignant chorus demanding automobiles. "All the kids have cars nowadays. Why can't we? We're 16, we could drive if you'd sign the permit. What's wrong with us driving? Even Dad got a tag last week. Why-y-y-y?"

No use making the conventional objections; they've the answers all ready. "Things are different now than when we were kids. We had it easier . . . we could get jobs . . . get married . . . didn't have to wait 'n' wait. Lookit Tom—out of Hi for three years and still no work. Everything's changed now. You gotta get your fun when you're young or there isn't any. Why can't we have our chance? Tisn't fair. . . ."

So what? Maybe you're saying it's just adolescence. But we were adolescent once, not so long ago. We wanted things, too, sulked and rebelled. But we didn't do it in wholesale, front-page riots. And there wasn't the bitterness in that rebellion which there is in these nursed grudges.

Or perhaps you blame it on unemployment. But, to my certain knowledge there isn't a youngster of working age in this group who hasn't had a dozen offers. But they're choosey. They've "gotta wait until something worth while turns up."

Laxity in our homes and High Schools? Frivolous mothers? Preoccupied Dads? Maybe. BUT PERSONALLY I THINK ITS LARGELY DUE TO OUR VAUNTED HIGH STANDARD OF LIVING. I HONESTLY BELIEVE WERE ALL TRYING TO LIVE TOO HIGH, WIDE 'N' HANDSOME . . . AND THE KIDS HAVE CAUGHT THE CONTAGION WANTING THINGS BEYOND THEIR AGE OR MEANS . . . WITH SCADS OF OVERINDULGED YOUNGSTERS OF SILLY PARENTS BACKING THEM UP.

But maybe I'm wrong. What's YOUR answer?

Land Route to Alaska.

We hear a good deal about the progress of the Pan-American International Highway as it stretches its slow way from Texas through Central and South America. Its relation to the defense of the Panama Canal Zone is not overlooked in emphasizing its contribution to our good-neighbor policy. Much less is heard of the proposed highway link to Alaska through British Columbia. Yet as we continue to build air bases in Alaska and fortify the Territory against any threat from the Pacific the strategic necessity of such a roadway becomes obvious.

The only present connection between Alaska and the continental United States is by water and air. Enemy attack might paralyze either service. The proposed land route is a long one but could be made comparatively safe. British Columbia has already built 830 miles of the highway, easily reached from Seattle. It must be extended to at least 2,000 miles, however, before it can become a source of supply to our bases at Fairbanks and Anchorage.—New York Time.

Priorities Board Lacks Power Over Essential Raw Materials

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Several months ago the Defense Commission, with a fanfare of publicity, announced the appointment of a Priorities Board. It was headed by Donald Nelson, former managerial wizard of Sears Roebuck, and included William Knudsen, Edward Stettinius and Leon Henderson, Defense Commission aces.

But despite its brilliant personnel, the board, like so many other things about the Defense Commission, isn't all that appears on the surface.

What only insiders are aware of is that the board's vaunted powers cover only the priority of distribution. That is, it can regulate the kind of planes a manufacturer can make and who shall get them.

This is important, but far from the whole story. For an equally important priorities problem, that of production, is totally untouched by the board. In other words the board is not attempting to control the supply of essential raw materials.

* * *

Old Mistake.

AN IRONIC feature of this situation is that it is a repetition of a major error of the World War Industries Board.

The old board also started out by setting up priority controls only over distribution. By the summer of 1918 the mistake was realized and the loophole plugged, but not without the loss of vital time.

This lesson was not lost on the army and navy, and after the war, industrial mobilization plans provided for a complete priorities control covering both raw materials and distribution.

Today army officers connected with the job of industrial mobilization, privately are much disturbed about the situation. Some gloomily foresee a grave crack-up in defense production unless immediate corrective steps are taken. Because of the lack of centralized authority in the defense set-up—the key weakness—these officers are keeping their mouths closed. But under cover, there is considerable resentment, which naturally doesn't improve the already none-too-cordial relations between the army and the defense commission.

Greatest army fear is a shortage in strategic ores such as chrome, manganese and tungsten, which already are below the two-year emergency reserves laid down by the Joint Munitions Board.

The army's worry has been heightened by the war in Greece, which constituted our chief chrome supply, together with Jugoslavia and Turkey, both sitting on the Balkan powder keg.

Chrome imports are below the reserve tonnage requirements set by the munitions board, and with steel output steadily mounting, it will be only a relatively short time before we get a chrome shortage, which would cause chaos in the machine tool industries.

Should industry start competing for alloys, there will be trouble. Ore reserves are jealously guarded trade secrets. Only the munitions board knows the size of stocks on hand. But lacking authority, it can do nothing about either conserving or allocating them.

And the defense priority board leaves the question wide open and the defense program headed for grave trouble.

* * *

Forecaster.

ROTUND Emil Hurja, ex-Democratic national committee official, who bolted to Willkie and predicted his victory by a decisive electoral college majority, has taken a lot of ribbing on his haywire forecast. The other day he explained to a group just how he arrived at his figures:

"I'm like the fellow they tell about down in Georgia, who decided to put out an almanac and when he came to the Fourth of July, marked it down for hail, sleet and zero cold. The printer, going over the copy noticed this extraordinary forecast and asked if there wasn't some mistake. He was assured there wasn't.

"'Why people will think you are crazy,' the printer said.

"'Sure,' was the calm reply, 'but just think what a reputation I'll have if it does come out right.'"

Note:—It was Jim Farley not Hurja who estimated Roosevelt's 46-state landslide in 1936.

* * *

George of Georgia.

NOT since 1938, when Franklin Roosevelt stood on a platform at Barnesville, Ga., and opposed the renomination of Senator George in his home state, has there been any love lost between these two men.

They have seen each other only on formal occasions and most of the time George has vigorously opposed New Deal measures.

But last week the national emergency, plus the death of Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, brought them together. Assuming his new duties as Senator Pittman's successor, Senator George had a very cordial visit with the president. All the old rancor seemed to have evaporated.

Inside fact is that Senator George was not sure how Roosevelt would receive his appointment as chairman of his key committee, and a friend of his made confidential inquiries in advance. He received word that the president was not one to bear grudges and would welcome the opportunity to cooperate.

Another inside fact is that the senate department welcomes Senator George as the new chairman, believes he will have great influence in getting a senate O. K. on foreign policy.

Lost Cornerstone.

CAPITOL building officials aren't saying anything about it, but the cornerstone of the great structure is lost.

All that is known definitely about it is that George Washington laid the stone in a ceremony on September 18, 1793, somewhere under the central portico on the south side of the Capitol. The exact spot is a mystery because the Father of His Country had to descend into a deep trench for the ceremony and nothing was ever done to mark the place.

Not until 100 years later, during the Cleveland administration, were steps taken to erect a marker, and then hit-or-miss methods were used. A bronze tablet was placed in an alcove on the east side of the portico stating that the cornerstone was "beneath."

Later, on September 17, 1932, the Masons laid a granite slab on the floor of the portico directly under the tablet, to commemorate the cornerstone laying. But this also was a conjectural stab at the place where Washington actually stood.

The only sure way to unravel the mystery is to excavate. Now the weakened roofs of the house and senate are being rebuilt. Capitol Architect David Lynn is seriously considering a search for the lost cornerstone. After finding the stone, he wants to build a stairway to it for tourists.

But first he must find the stone.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YOK—Some of the chatter about town, especially the professional chatter, is good, and some is bad . . . Some of it is homey and some is friendly.

But there is objectionable chatter, too, because some people, oddly enough, like being kicked around. I have the most solemn assurance of this from a man who has made a snug fortune and built himself a highly successful career on his ability to abuse and embarrass strangers.

* * *

HE OPERATES a nightclub on Fifty-second street. It is a tiny hole-in-the-wall variety of night spot, where noise and abuse predominate. For instance, a guest comes in and stands near the table of an acquaintance, before sitting down.

Suddenly a clothes brush is tossed at his feet and a rude voice yells, "Take care of yourself, buddy; you've got enough dandruff on your coat collar to bread a veal chop."

The guest is aghast, but quickly recovers when the house bursts into a roar. That is the sum of the entertainment there. The guests wait in glee for the appearance of the next unsuspecting stranger—and the insult.

* * *

ON THE other hand, when a fellow like Kay Kyser, grinning down at you from the top of a band stand, cries, "Come on, chillun—let's dance," you feel friendly toward everyone you see, even though they are strangers. He may do this as a regular thing—I don't know—but in a recent appearance at the Strand theater on Broadway he got off to a perfect start by yelling, "Let's all be friendly . . . Lean over and kiss the person next to you." . . . After that, and all the time he was there, the whole Strand was in the hollow of his hand.

* * *

STILL as dapper, handsome and impudent as ever is Edmund Lowe . . . I remember him in New York when he and Victor McLaglen were doing their Sgt. Quirt and Capt. Flagg act on the Capitol stage . . . Vic, the strong man, went around grabbing up people by one hand and lifting them above his shoulders . . . He picked Lowe up like that one night back stage and held him high above his head . . . Lowe yelled, "Cut out that ham acting." "I ain't acting," grunted Vic. "I'm taking me daily dozen."

Those were better days than these in some ways . . . They were before the depression, when Lillyan Tashman, who was Eddie Lowe's wife, was still living. Now Lowe is back in New York—not clowning back stage but talking to lawyers and answering questions in court. It is one of those unfortunate, unhappy vignettes that concerns money, and jewelry, and furs, which apparently at some time or another must rise to plague those who achieve a prominence beyond a certain stage in life.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Houses Are Such Fun.

For houses are such fun! You place
A chair, just so, and wait
The verdict of the family
To know its final fate.

"It would look better over there,"
Says Julia, now sixteen,
And majoring in household art.
"But now it seems to lean

On everything about it." "No,"
Says Bob, an architect,
"Besides the window is the place
For it, that I'll elect."

You cannot hang a curtain up,
Put down a yellow dish
Without the family's comment,
Or opposite their wish.

Oh houses are a lot of fun.
And families are more.
These modern days when interest
Clings to each chair and door.

Health And Diet

First Baby and Other Questions.

—By DR. CLENDENING

Is it safe for a woman over 40 to have her first baby?

About 80 per cent of mothers of first babies are between 15 and 35 years of age. Most of these are between 20 and 25 years of age. Only about 2 per cent of first babies are born when the mothers are over 35, and only 1 per cent when they are over 40. Naturally, the risk is greater over 40—the bones of the pelvis and the tissues are more solid and less resilient. Besides that the dangers of toxemia of pregnancy are more imminent after 40. But certainly in that 1 per cent mentioned above, the great majority come through safely, and the children are perfectly healthy. But the expectant mother over 40 should have extra special care and medical supervision all through the period.

* * *

What is meant by the term "muscle bound"?

In popular phraseology, this applies to a heavy-set, heavy-muscled man who has been working or exercising so much that he cannot respond by quick or clever movements when in competitive contests such as boxing or wrestling. It is not a scientific term and there is no good scientific explanation for the condition. When a muscle is used a great deal it tends to become shorter and hence to produce a strong pull on weaker sets of opposing muscles, causing, in certain cases, some deformity.

* * *

Is regular dreaming every night of any significance?

From the standpoint of physical disease, no. It indicates an active mental and imaginative life in the waking hours. Most dreaming is done by persons between 20 and 25 years of age, and dreams increase with the variety and activity of the individual's mental life. Investigations by the psychology departments in colleges and universities show that around examination time or commencement time, when intellectual processes are stirred up, students dream more often and more than once a night. Dreams do not really disturb rest very much because a dream seldom lasts more than ten minutes. The after-effects of a dream on the imagination, however, may cause depression and a feeling akin to fatigue.

3 CITY FIRMS CONTRIBUTE TO OHIO PROGRAM

Industrial Construction Gets Boost From Defense, Business Upswing.

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles on an Associated Press cross-section survey as to how the current business upswing and national defense orders have affected Ohio business and labor.)

By JOHN H. COLBURN.

Three Mansfield firms are contributing $1,700,000 to a huge industrial construction program in Ohio, with Westinghouse alone spending $1,500,000 for a new warehouse and metal stamping facilities for refrigerators.

The Tappan Stove company during recent months spent $100,000 for a new enameling plant, while the Humphryes Manufacturing company built a new office building that cost $100,000.

All over Ohio new factories are being built; others are being expanded and modernized, while some old, virtually abandoned factories are in the stages of rehabilitation, an Associated Press survey shows.

It's Ohio business' answer to 11 months of steady climbing on the prosperity path, accelerated since July by $206,972,644 in government orders for national defense equipment.

Accompanied by heavy demands for labor, which resulted in relief and WPA roll reductions, the industrial spurt has started millions of dollars filtering into new pockets. Aviation and steel are leading the industrial expansion principally due to national defense orders. But much of the other activity is ascribed to general business improvement.

In the aviation field, Curtiss-Wright is building a $10,000,000 airplane factory in Columbus and Wright Aeronautical Corp. a $30,000,000 motor-making unit in Cincinnati. The aero products division of General Motors is erecting a propeller plant at Dayton.

Work will start shortly at Cleveland on the government's $8,000,000 aviation research laboratory.

Copperweld Steel Co. of Warren is spending $1,000,000 to house a new 40-ton electric steel furnace, and other plant improvements in that district are costing $600,000. Sharon Steel Corp., as part of a $1,000,000 program, is to build a 20-ton electric furnace to produce high grade stainless and alloy steels at Lowellville and Republic Steel will rebuild its five Youngstown furnaces and has an elaborate improvement program underway at Canton. American Rolling Mills of Middletown is in the midst of a $5,000,000 program.

A year ago the Mingo Junction plant of Carnegie-Illinois Steel company was making synthetic scrap iron and was scheduled for dismantlement. Now $2,500,000 has been appropriated to modernize it for heat-treating thin armor plate. Steubenville plants of Weirton and Wheeling Steel are continuing expansion programs launched a year ago.

Steel is going mainly into armaments and in this northeastern Ohio industrial area—near Ravenna—the government is building a $14,000,000 arsenal that will be close to the steel supply.

Construction there already is well underway. Ohio firms will share largely in $29,000,000 allocated to tool and supply this ordnance plant.

Akron's leaders in the synthetic rubber field, Firestone's Buna, Goodyear's Chemigum, and Goodrich's Ameripol, also have expanded facilities. General Tire and Rubber company there has branched out in order to up production 33 per cent.

Ohio's machine tool industry, a leader in the national field, also has been forced to enlarge since machine tools used in many industries are 20 years or more old. General Machinery Co., of Hamilton is spending $200,000 on improvements.

In Cleveland during the past 20 months $70,000,000 has been spent on new industries and plant expansions, not more than half of it connected with the national defense program. Of $18,000,000 new capital being invested in Columbus, $7,500,000 is not associated with defense work.

The European war has opened up new South American markets for Marion's Huber Manufacturing Co., farm equipment makers, and it built a new $12,000 sales office.

Typical of expansion in non-industrial areas was $75,000 spent in Van Wert, center of an agricultural community.

As Weather Continues to Delay Fourth Street Paving

Weather conditions continued to delay completion of the Fourth street paving today, fourth day since the expiration of the deadline for finishing the job. No. 1 photo shows work at a standstill on a storm sewer. No. 2 is a road barrier at Fourth and Bowman streets and No. 3 shows a stretch of unfinished curbing. Bricklayers are idle because of the snow as photo No. 4 shows. The weather holding up completion of connecting paving at the entrance of Sherman place, as shown in No. 5, prevents removal of a "road closed" barrier at that intersection. No. 6 shows workmen grinding away a high spot in the paving at Fourth and Main where water puddles collect during rain storms.

HIGHWAY PATROL REPORTS 36 TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS IN MONTH

A total of 36 traffic accidents were investigated by patrolmen from the Mansfield sub-station of the state highway patrol during November, a report issued by Corp. C. F. Strayer, officer in charge, showed today.

Of the total, 19 resulted in injuries to 40 people, while the remaining 16 caused property damage estimated at $12,860. Two fatalities were reported in the area during the month.

The report also stated that 72 arrests were made during the period. Twenty-eight were for speeding, 10 for stop sign violations, 17 for unsafe driving, seven for defective automobile conditions, and seven for miscellaneous traffic violations.

Most dangerous days to travel during the month, the report showed, were Saturday and Sunday.

During the four Sundays in the month, a total of six accidents were investigated, resulting in two deaths and injuries to 10 persons. Seven accidents occurred on Saturday resulting in injuries to 15 motorists.

The report also revealed that speed caused the most accidents, with failure to stop for stop signs, and driving on the left side of the road also contributing greatly to driving hazards during the month.

SHUTTLE PLANES

American Pilots Fly Bombers Over Ocean to Britain.

BALTIMORE — (AP) — Forty American pilots are making regular mass deliveries of American bombers to England without molestation from Nazis, one of them disclosed today.

George R. Hutchinson, head of the "Flying Hutchinsons" family which in recent years made "good will" flights to 51 countries, asserted that regular deliveries had been made since early November and that none of the pilots had encountered German opposition.

Seven high-speed Lockheed Hudson bombers were delivered in the first flight last month, he said. His own ship made the fastest time for the trip—eight hours and 50 minutes from land to land and ten hours from take-off in North America to landing in Britain.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

THE ARRIVAL of December and the soft falling snow brought along a special Christmas spirit too, so it seems that now most folks are really in the mood for gift shopping. . . . And incidentally, this business of selecting the right gifts is really something of an art—and the trick lies in thinking of the persons on your list as personalities instead of merely names to be checked off. . . . Some of those strictly feminine items should appeal to most any woman, and they've been dressed up so festively this year that you'll probably want to buy one for your own Christmas stocking.

One of America's leading women make-up manufacturers has a gay collection of beauty creations for Christmas which should assure you and your friends of a happy holiday season. . . . Just about the prettiest of all is the Beauty Bell a huge glittering golden bell, which holds Town and Country perfumes, Gardenia cologne and face powder in an original-design box by Marie Laurencin.... Then there's also a pair of shining golden bells containing Town and Apple Blossom perfume ... Speaking of Apple Blossom, if that's one of your friends' favorite fragrances, you'll want to give her a luxury set of cologne, body powder, bath oil, powder cologne, face powder in this inimitable fragrance, complete with atomizer—a supply to last until next Christmas. . . . The Christmas Tree Trio is also a clever gift idea. . . . The box contains three gold-topped bottles in three floral scents, (Gardenia, Orchid and Apple Blossom) under a transparent acetate Christmas tree trimmed with gold and ribbons.

* * *

There are soap gifts appropriate for most everyone from Baby Dumpling to Aunt Sally. . . . All sorts of figures of Santa—going down the chimney and delivering gifts on skis—soap fish, dogs, pigs and Indian papooses in blankets are some of the soap toys that should make bathing a delight for the kiddies. . . . Boxes of florally scented soaps in pastel colors with flower designs raised on top make pretty gifts, and they can be purchased in Honeysuckle, Apple Blossom, Lilac, Lily-of-the-Valley and Pine.

* * *

NEW and different for the dressing table are those mirror boxes which come in a variety of sizes and styles . . . Some are for clearing tissues, others for make up and some for jewelry, while the large ones combine all of these features with swivel mirrors ...Some of the boxes come with tissues and cotton swirls already in them.

* * *

"Fleurs d'Amour compacts have been popular favorites for ever so long now, and everyone who uses them will be more than pleased to know that they've been done up in a new package just in time for Christmas. . . . These hand-pressed powder vanities now come in lustrous gold cases with soft lambswool puffs and large clear mirrors—so combined with this pleasing powder and its sweet-smelling scent, they're tops in gift suggestions.

* * *

NOW if you've a friend on your list whom you don't see often enough to know her favorite color combinations you might play safe with and give her one of these handy little pouch purses... These envelope style bags come in shades and prints and combine five warm winter shades . . . Another gift idea is found in these shiny copper and gold-tone flower pots which come singly or in sets and sparkling gems

MRS. PHILLIPS TALKS BEFORE ASSOCIATION

Presents Program on Development of Theaters at Monthly Dinner Meeting of University Women Held at Congregational Church.

FOLLOWING a dinner at the First Congregational church members of the Mansfield branch, American Association of University Women were entertained by Mrs. Frances Phillips, Oberlin, who presented a program entitled "The Scene Changes" in which she illustrates the development of the theater from the 11th century to the present time.

After a brief definition of the mystery, miracle and morality plays, Mrs. Phillips described stages, drama and their history, and illustrated with a number of model stages dating from the early 15th century to the stage of Radio City Music hall

She told her audience that the liturgical play was first presented in France in the churches by the priests, and by the 14th century, by a series of moves, the theater had been completely divorced from the church

Discussing the theater, Mrs Phillips stated, "The stage is a reflection of the times." By way of conclusion she explained that stages, since early times, have always used simultaneous settings.

Preceding the talk David Weimer played several piano compositions including one of his own, and Joseph Pival accompanied by Miss Thelma Reed, offered two violin selections Mrs Charles S Kuntz, program chairman introduced the performers

The brief routine business meeting was in charge of Mrs M W. Giles, president During the session it was announced that the Community Problems study group will meet Dec 10 at the home of Mr and Mrs L C Baumgardner, Courtright boulevard, South Boulevards for a covered-dish dinner, and to plan visits to various points of interest in the city.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Whatever opinions either Mrs. Ticer or Dicky had at first, they share mine now," I told her. "And I am sure of one of two things. Either Marion is shielding some one by this—adventure—of hers, or else she has been led to believe that either you or Harry is in danger because of the desire of some miscreant to be avenged upon you for some government activity condemning him to punishment."

"Yes, you really believe what you are saying," she said after a pause, with relief vibrant in her voice. "But I might have known you couldn't believe that Marion—that Marion—"

Her voice trailed away, and I saw that she did not have the courage to voice the damning thought which she knew most people would hold concerning Marion's reasons for entering into this adventure.

"That Marion was in love with this man Mrs. Ticer saw," I finished, putting what I deemed to be just the right amount of scorn into my voice.

"No. I know Marion too well myself. She wouldn't leave college and keep you in suspense, even for a boy like Ronald, and they are virtually engaged. She certainly would take no such step because of a man like the one Mrs. Ticer saw."

"Your denial was convincing," Lillian said with a wan little travesty of a smile. "But your logic isn't. You and I know very well that a girl will sometimes fall for a rotter, and be led into risks which she never would take for a less spectacular suitor. But Marion always has had too much sense ingrained in her nature to do a thing like this unless her generosity, her loyalty or her affection for some one near and dear to her prompted the action."

"That's the thing upon which I'm basing my opinion," I told her. "If she were Carolyn, now."

"You think then," she said tentatively.

"I think," I said stoutly, "that Carolyn Brixton has entirely different ideas of life and its meaning than has Marion. Oh! I grant you that she's lovable, high-minded, sunny and generous, to a fault, and that she's a marvelous school companion for Marion. But she's a harum-scarum youngster, with considerably less than the average quota of common sense, and I can very easily imagine her getting temporarily infatuated with someone like this man in question. But never Marion!"

"I thank Heaven for your faith in her," she said fervently, and then paused with an odd little look at me.

"You are saying what I am too loyal to Helena to put into words," she said, added drearily; "But I cannot control my thoughts, which seem cowardly and treacherous."

"They are neither," I told her hotly. "Facts are facts and we must face them."

"But Helena loves Carolyn as dearly as I love Marion," she said.

"But she did not hold her to the same standards, you know that," I replied emphatically. "Besides," as I just said, the two girls have entirely different quotas of common sense."

"If I thought," she blazed suddenly, "that Marion was doing this to shield Carolyn from some scrape, I'd go up to that college and—"

She broke off suddenly, and again fixed compelling eyes upon me.

"Is that what you think? Is it?" she demanded.

"I don't know," I said honestly. "It was the first explanation that came into my head. But that question of Marion's concerning Jack Bickett's whereabouts, doesn't fit in there—or could it?"

SANTA and the GIANT-KILLER

BY SIGRID ARNE

THE STORY SO FAR: The Fairy Queen has changed a ship-wrecked prince and a mermaid into tiny new babies so that Santa may give them as Christmas presents. The baby boy is meant for Saul, a fisherman.

CHAPTER THREE

IT WAS just a few minutes before midnight when the prince and the mermaid were changed into tiny, new babies. Santa chuckled down at them. Neptune looked sad that his favorite daughter was leaving. And the Fairy Queen wrapped the babies in soft rose petals.

Neptune pulled from his pocket a tiny, white sea shell and put it in the boy baby's hand. He said, "This will carry you anywhere in the water." And he put a big, glowing pearl in the girl baby's hand and said, "Look into this when you are puzzled and it will tell you what the future will bring."

Then from across the water they heard the bells begin to ring. It was midnight. "Ho, hum," said Santa as he got up. "Time to be off. Neptune, come see me this summer when the ice melts."

Neptune promised and helped Santa to get into his sleigh and settle the babies safely beside him. Then Santa cracked his long whip, the reindeers rose into the air and his sleigh flew over the water to the villages on the shore.

Had Made A Cradle.

Santa went first that night to the cottage of Saul and Inga. There were candles glowing in all their windows. He peeked in and saw they were so excited they couldn't sit still. They had made a cradle of a big basket and filled it with soft white shawls.

As they hurried into the kitchen Santa slipped into the living room and gently put the little boy baby in the cradle. In one hand the baby held the Fairy Queen's locket which would grant him three wishes. And in the other he held Neptune's sea shell which would carry him anywhere on the water.

Then Santa slipped out and rode away across the sky. He knew just where he wanted to leave the little girl baby. He planned to give her to the good gray Queen who wanted a little daughter so badly that she had fitted out a nursery. But it stayed empty. So each Christmas she sent out baskets of fruit to all the children in her kingdom.

SANTA WENT FIRST THAT NIGHT TO THE COTTAGE OF SAUL AND INGA.

Santa flew straight to her castle. He saw the Queen in the kitchen watching her servants fill fruit baskets for children. So Santa slipped quickly upstairs and put the little girl baby in the nursery crib. The child held in her tiny left hand the pearl that would tell her what the future held.

Then Santa rode away through the sky, chuckling at the surprises he had left behind. He rode all night. He whisked up and down chimneys, leaving dolls and toy wagons and balls and necklaces and big glistening Christmas trees. Just as dawn streaked the sky he left his last gift for the year. It was a gold watch for a boy who had been very good to a blind man down the street.

Then Santa turned his sleigh home through the sky. He rushed home to tell Mrs. Santa all the news. She was so excited she had stayed up all the night. She had a big pot of chocolate and a plate of cookies waiting for him. You see, it isn't very often that Santa can give real live babies as Christmas gifts.

Santa drank all the hot chocolate and ate all the cookies. When he had finished he chuckled and said, "It will be fun to watch those babies grow. I shall visit them each Christmas Eve. I am sure they will both be happy."

But right then on a mountain top there were three giants who would mean trouble for the prince and the mermaid.

TOMORROW: The three giants.

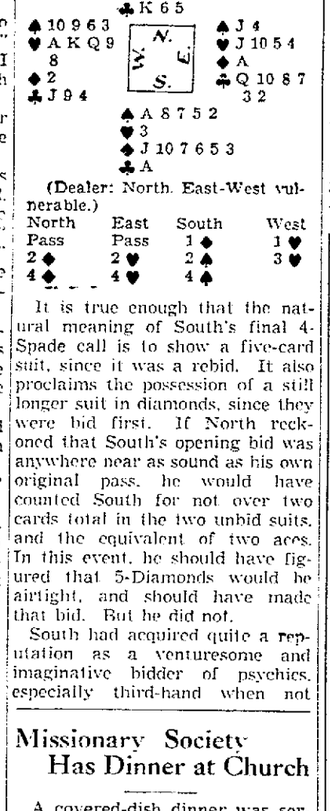
"The Authority on Authorities"

HARMFUL IN TWO WAYS

PSYCHIC bidding may be costly in its effect both upon the opponents and upon your partner. If they manage to see through such a bid by you at an illogical spot, it can bring you severe punishment. If your partner fails to smell it out, the side may get into the wrong contract. There is an additional important way it may hurt—on a later hand or hands. Your partner will be on the lookout for other psychics by you, and sometimes will suspect you of a psychic when you have been guilty of no such thing. In that event, his suspicions may wind you up in the wrong contract.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	1 ♥
2 ♦	2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♥
4 ♦	4 ♥	4 ♠

It is true enough that the natural meaning of South's final 4-Spade call is to show a five-card suit, since it was a rebid. It also proclaims the possession of a still longer suit in diamonds, since they were bid first. If North reckoned that South's opening bid was anywhere near as sound as his own original pass, he would have counted South for not over two cards total in the two unbid suits, and the equivalent of two aces. In this event, he should have figured that 5-Diamonds would be airtight, and should have made that bid. But he did not.

South had acquired quite a reputation as a venturesome and imaginative bidder of psychics, especially third-hand when not vulnerable North therefore doubted whether South had any diamond suit at all, and also whether he had anything near to two aces. Hence his pass of 4-Spades. Against repeated heart leads at every chance, making South ruff his contract was utterly impossible, in view of West's holding of four trumps—a probable holding when six are held by the defenders.

The table was decorated with a Christmas tree and a miniature nativity scene. The group sang carols and poems were read after which gifts were exchanged by the 16 present.

Hostesses were Mrs. Goldie Callahan, Mrs. Nettie Fish, and Mrs. Sarah Rose. Members will meet Jan. 7 with Mrs. M. V. Kimbel.

LUNCH TOMORROW.

Members of the Mansfield Business and Professional Women and their friends will meet for a regular monthly luncheon between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. at the Evergreens tomorrow.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Dec. 5.

A moderately interesting and progressive day is the augury based on the predominant lunar aspects. The energies and spirit of initiative may be keyed up to more than customary high pressure, and yet such stimulation is likely to be exercised in the domain of the personal rather than the business life, unless such practical expression pertain to the arts, entertainment or perhaps promoting certain social, welfare or romantic functions.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of lively and interesting adventures, with the forces and faculties keyed to high purpose, although this may be in the direction of progressive or artistic rather than purely sordid and practical objectives.

A child born on this day will be active, energetic and ambitious to be of service in a humane, social or philanthropic spirit. It will be artistic, refined, have high ideals and aims, thereby promoting much personal appeal.

For a novel drink, try combining grape sherbet with ginger ale, or grape carbonated beverage. Apricot sherbet with lime carbonated beverage makes another deliciously different drink.

CHAPTER XIII

It was referring to her — and Allan! The color drained from Glory's face as she read the words a second time. Suddenly her happiness faded. An ice-cold chill swept over her heart. What did they mean "pulled a fast one"? Could it be true that Allan had deserted her?

The telephone rang, then again, but Glory sat staring blankly into space. What did it matter now? What did anything matter if she had lost him?

It was Tillie who bustled into the living room and answered the telephone. She turned to Glory, her face beaming. "It's for you, Miss Glory—it's long distance."

Glory snatched the telephone from Tillie but her hand was shaking so that she could scarcely hold it

"Hello? . . . Hello? . . . "Allan's voice was saying. "Can you hear me, Glory?"

* * *

"Oh, Allan, where are you?"

"On my way home, Sweet! Everything's all right."

"I've been so worried," she confessed.

"Did you think I'd forget your birthday?" Allan asked reproachfully.

Glory smiled through her tears but she could not speak.

"I'm bringing you a present," Allan continued gayly. "And I'll be in Hollywood tomorrow night!"

Not a word explaining why he had not telephoned before. But he was coming back.

"Glory, can you hear me? What's the matter?"

"Nothing, darling; nothing."

"I've got so many things to tell you tomorrow," Allan said tenderly. "Do you love me?"

"You know I do, Allan."

"Then good-bye, sweet, until tomorrow!"

Glory replaced the receiver feeling like a new woman! Allan was coming back! She would see him tomorrow night. He loved her! Oh, he did, she knew it! She could tell by every inflection of his voice. Whatever he had done, wherever he had been, she forgave him. Allan was impulsive, undependable perhaps, but he had given her the kind of romance she wanted—the kind that swept her off her feet. The world she had with Allan was magic, enchanted—the dream world for which every girl secretly longs.

Scottie found her in a radiant mood when he came to take her to dinner. He presented her with a small leather make-up case with her name engraved in gold letters and a gold star beneath.

Glory was thrilled. "Oh, Scottie, it's perfectly beautiful!" she cried.

Scottie beamed. "No business tonight!" he promised. "We're going to a quiet place for dinner where there won't be any cameramen. We're not even going to talk about the studio. This is your birthday, you can have a night off."

Glory laughed to think that she had reached the point where it was a relief to have a "night off" from her career! But it was fun to be herself and not have to be at the tension and strain of watching every gesture and expression. And true to his word, Scottie did not mention business. Instead he told her about the old days in New York where he had been a theatrical agent.

"By the way, where is Helen tonight?" Scottie asked suddenly.

"She probably had to work late," Glory said.

"Helen has had a tough break," Scottie replied. "If she had gotten the right start when she first came to Hollywood, she might have gone places, but she's too old now. She'll be lucky if she can go on holding her own in these bit parts."

"Poor Helen!" Glory sighed.

"They're not all as lucky as you've been, baby," Scottie reminded her. "You've gotten the breaks right from the start."

"I know it," Glory said, "and I realize now it's because of you. I used to think that all any one had to do to get into the movies was to register at Central Casting. I was pretty dumb then, wasn't I?"

Scottie Weston smiled. So Glory thought she knew all the answers now, did she? Poor kid! Just because she had been the one in a million to get a chance, she thought things would come her way. But Scottie knew that no one's life could be all roses. If she got her career, she'd lose something else. Look at himself for instance! He'd made the grade. He had everything he wanted except . . .

"Have you heard from Allan?" he barked, instantly regretting his question. He shouldn't have brought that up tonight—not on her birthday.

But Glory beamed.

"Yes! He called tonight. He'll be home tomorrow. Everything's all right!"

She lifted radiant blue eyes to his.

Scottie's heart did a nose dive as he thought. "You should have known that just having dinner with YOU wouldn't make her look like that.

* * *

Aloud he said, "That's swell! I'm glad to hear it!" But mentally Scottie was cursing Allan Rhodes. Maybe he had come back to her this time but sooner or later it would happen again. All right, when it did, he, Scottie Weston, was going to be there. Glory might need him yet, no matter how she felt about it now.

As for Glory she was at peace with the world. Allan was coming home! Strange what an amazing difference that one fact could make. It made her birthday the happiest she had ever had.

When she reached home that night she found Helen reading in bed. She looked tired. "I've waited for you," she said. "Because I wanted to give you your birthday present."

Glory sat down on the foot of the bed and opened a small package which disclosed a pair of long white evening gloves.

"Oh, Helen, how sweet of you. I've had such a wonderful birthday. Allan telephoned!" she announced triumphantly.

Helen refused to be impressed. "What did he have to say?"

"He's coming home tomorrow. He said he had a lot of things to tell me."

"How interesting." Helen remarked dryly.

The next day at the studio Glory worked hard. She knew that this part was important and that her future depended upon how well she put it across. She was playing the role of a young widow whose husband had been drowned at sea. It was an unhappy part, but the kind that could rouse sympathy and cause the audience to leave the theater remembering the character—perhaps even wondering who had played it.

"Nice work!" Max Cavell had said when she finished a particularly difficult scene. Glory flushed with pleasure. A compliment from her director was rare.

She was not free until six o'clock but she kept her appointment with the hairdresser, begging him to hurry. She had her fingernails tinted the dull red color that Allan liked, and it was seven-thirty before she arrived at the apartment.

Tillie told her that Mr. Rhodes had telephoned and would call for her at eight. Only half an hour! Tillie ran the bath water and threw fragrant salts into the tub. She laid out the new gray dress and turban that Allan had not seen. Glory applied fresh make-up and was just slipping into her dress when the buzzer rang.

But it was Helen, not Allan, who entered.

"I forgot my key," she explained. "What time is he coming?"

"Any minute now," Glory replied excitedly, clasping twin silver bracelets about her slender wrists.

"I think I'll go out," Helen said.

"You needn't," Glory said but she was glad when Helen insisted. Glory had a feeling that tonight was something special. Allan wanted to talk to her. It would be so much better if they could be alone.

She dismissed Tillie for the evening and when the buzzer sounded again Glory herself ran to answer it.

"Allan, darling!" she cried, and was in his arms.

"I've missed you so," she murmured.

Allan held her away from him for a moment. "You've never looked so beautiful," he told her as his eyes drank in every detail of her appearance.

* * *

Glory's head was swimming. Allan was with her again, here in this room lighting a cigaret as he had so many times before! She was determined not to be the kind of woman who asked, "Why didn't you call?" "Where were you?" She knew that Allan hated to be cross-examined. So she forced back the questions that were leaping to her lips, and smiled tenderly at him. His handsome face looked jubilant.

"Where would you like to go tonight?" he asked.

"Anywhere," Glory answered happily.
